Child daycare

Renens-Crissier Network

In affirming a common identity, a framework of shared values, this charter guarantees an equal quality of care for every child, all the while respecting the diversity of the structures within the Renens-Crissier network.

Placed at the center of the thought process, the child is considered as a citizen (inhabitant of the city) capable, competent and also as an individual who explores, progresses and interacts with his/her environment. To accompany them in their development, the values that aim to guide the actions of partners in pre-schooling were defined around four major axes.

- Allow the child to build trust in the adults who take care of them
- Consider the child as unique and important within the group
- Allow the child to develop social competences

The Child:

- Foster exchanges with the families that encourage an environment of trust while respecting uniqueness and diversity within the collective

The Parents-The Family:

- In the interest of the child, foster communication amongst the teams conducive to reinforcing self-confidence and trust in others
- Foster solidarity and link together the various points of view and perceptions in order to define the actions necessary for the child's best development

The Professionals and the Teams:

- Create a secure and stimulating environment which promotes pleasure in learning and interacting with all who surround the child
